

ALLEGHENY COUNTY BLACK TEACHER STUDY

If you're a current or former K-12 teacher in an Allegheny County district or charter school and identify as Black, consider joining our study!

Research for Action (RFA), an independent research organization, is studying the decline of Black teachers in Allegheny County districts and charter schools.

researchforaction.org

Here is what you need to know!

What is this research about?

The purpose of this research is to identify barriers that have contributed to the low recruitment and retention of Black educators within Allegheny County's public K-12 school systems by listening to and directly learning from the experiences and perspectives of Black educators and those leading educator diversity initiatives. You can learn more about this project here.

What is involved?

Your participation would involve a virtual 60 minute interview or focus group this spring. Personal information about participants will be kept private.

As a thank you for participating in an interview, you will receive a monetary reward in the form of a $50 gift card.

Who can participate?

We invite you to participate in this study if you identify as Black or African American and are currently teaching or have previously taught in any of Allegheny County's K-12 public schools (district or charter). Please share this information with others who may be eligible.

What are the next steps?

If you are eligible and interested in participating in this study, please click complete this form so we can learn more about your background. After receiving your form response, a member of our research team will contact you by email.

If you would like more information on this project, please email:
blackteacherstudyac@researchforaction.org