

Dr. Wayne Jones

Dr. Wayne Jones, the CEO of Penn Hills Charter School of Entrepreneurship, brings visionary and transformational leadership to the forefront of education. Driven by an unwavering commitment to results, he has published an Op-Ed titled “Entrepreneurial Education Essential for Pittsburgh Youth” and educational research on the impact of entrepreneurial education on K-12 teachers’ efficacy in Pennsylvania. Wayne passionately imparts his knowledge as an adjunct instructor at Duquesne University’s Palumbo-Donahue School of Business, sharing valuable insights on entrepreneurship with graduate students. His dedication extends beyond academia as he actively engages in community service, serving on the boards of esteemed organizations and coaching youth football. Dr. Jones’s exceptional commitment to youth empowerment and community development has earned him numerous accolades, including the Pahara Institute Fellow, Pittsburgh Magazine PUMP 40 Under 40, and the New Pittsburgh Courier Men of Excellence distinction, among others.